G20 Black

This is another type of Black granite from South India. The color varies from medium to dark black with a few specks on it which can be viewed if taken a closer look. This is extremely good in areas with a high footfall and are a wonderful choice for kitchen countertops and tabletops too.

Black Galaxy

Black Galaxy granite is very popular form of Indian granite found in quarries of South India. It has a pitch-dark black background with golden and silver speckles which gives it a look of a starry night sky. The Black Galaxy has very even patterns and can be used for both indoors and outdoors and is ideal for flooring, countertops and tablespots.

Steel Grey

Steel Grey is a form of Indian granite originating from South India. It comes with a light to dark background of Grey with flowers of lighter shades that look like pearls. Steel Grey has a very consistent color with minor variations in texture. This color is suited for both indoor and outdoor use and can be used for flooring, cladding and countertops.

Coffee Brown

TAN BROWN

TAN BROWN PSR

TAN BROWN WC

This granite, quarried in South India, has complex and interesting patterns. When seen from a distance, this stone is clearly a two-toned granite and has both black and brown minerals which make them irresistible to the eyes. The brown spots can range from almost metallic copper brown in color through to dark chocolate brown in some sections.

Vizag Blue

Vizag Blue is a granite found in Andhra Pradesh, South India. It has a blue background with a lot of movements of grey and white veins and is also called Blue Granite. It looks best as kitchen and bathroom countertops.

Lavender Blue

These are quarried in Eastern part of India. They have a blue background with dark waves and have burgundy/purple specks on them. From far, they look lavender in color. They are very hard and can be used for countertops, floorings and even wall claddings. They are of great demand in many countries.

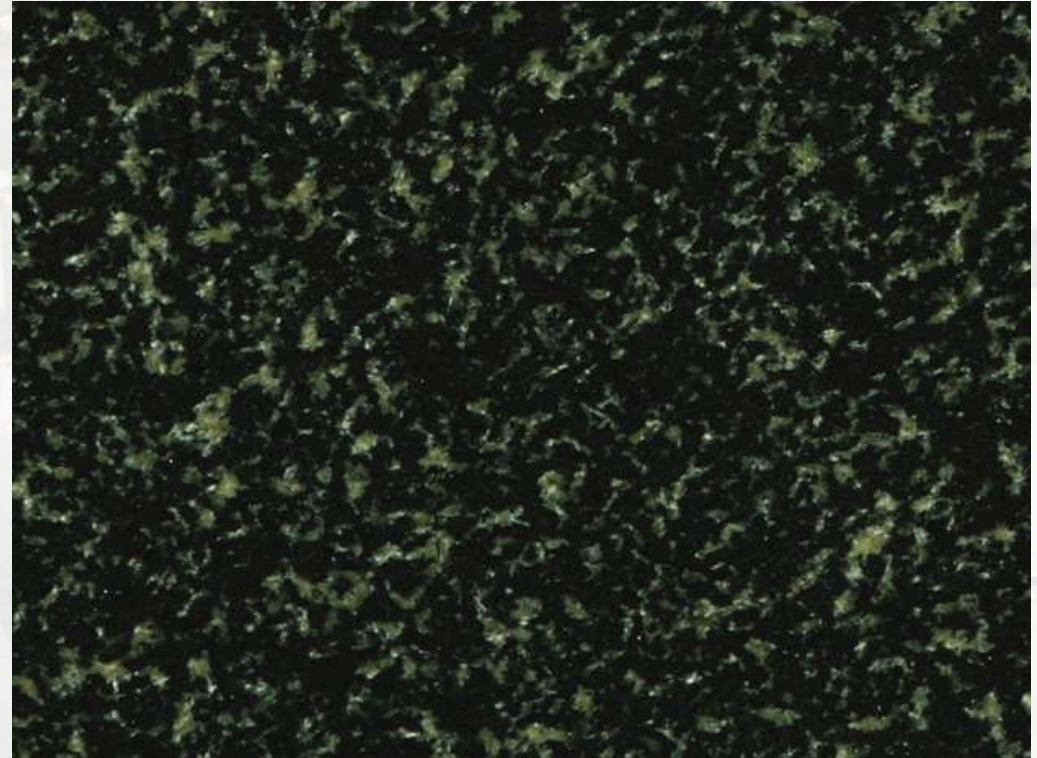

New Himalayan Blue

Himalayan Blue is found in Karnataka, South India. This comes with a brownish blue background and has orange swirls and streaks. As it has low water absorption, it is ideal for both indoor and outdoor applications.

Hassan Green

This granite is found in South India and has medium grains on it. It has a blackish green background with lighter green specks on it. It looks extremely attractive and is very durable. They can be used as countertops and floorings. They also look best when used for staircases and wall claddings.

Ivory Brown Granite is found in South India, It is a stunning natural stone featuring a warm ivory base with flowing brown and beige veins. Its elegant patterns and soft tones make it ideal for countertops, flooring, and wall cladding, adding a sophisticated touch to any space.

Astoria Ivory

Astoria Ivory is quarried in South India. It is predominantly a creamy golden color granite which captures the eye from afar. This golden color can range all the way from a slightly off-white color – to a color that resembles wet sand. The creamy golden background has dark brown spots and veins. They can be used as countertops, wall claddings and for floorings.

Colonial White

Colonial White granite, also known as Millennium Cream, features white to ivory patterns with purple and dark grey specks. Colonial White has natural earthy tones that makes brushed finish a desirable option for people looking to create a more natural look in their home. Having a light base, the stone proves to be the perfect choice for those who would want to add class and elegance to their space.

Colonial Gold

Colonial Gold is a stunning cream and white stone that is loved for its golden tones. It is quarried in Tamil Nadu, South India. The stone is littered with small mineral deposits called quartz that range from a very light to medium brown. These stunning little crystals add shine and sparkle to the stone when exposed to natural light. Colonial Gold is a good choice of stone for floorings and kitchen, countertops and tabletops.

New Indian Titanium

Black granite has its own class. This stunning black granite comes with white, grey and fawn swirls that give it a bold appeal which will make anyone who sees it sigh in awe. The New Indian Titanium is highly durable and hence can be used in areas with a high footfall. It is ideal for kitchen countertops and bathroom vanity tops.

Black Forest

Black Forest is found in Andhra Pradesh, South India. This granite has dark background with white waves. Its charm and elegance will look splendid in any given space and is so durable that it can easily last for decades without the need for repolish. This granite is mostly used for kitchen countertops, wall tiles and flooring.

Imperial Gold

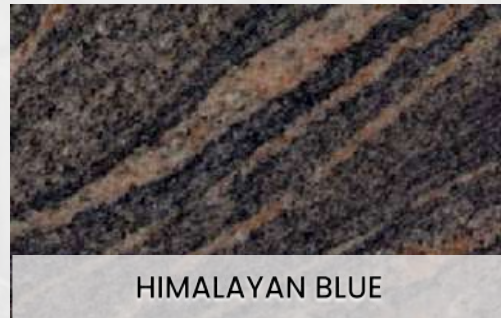

This granite is quarried in South India. It comes with a yellow and gold background and has the greatest number of variations in pattern. It has white, black and grey veins throughout and some specks of darker gold and patches of pink. They look stunning in well-lit rooms and hence make beautiful wall claddings, floorings and countertops.

Indian Juparna
